WHY DID HE SHOOT HIMSELF? Howard Johnson's Suicide Causes a Sensation in Maiden Lane.

The outside of Howard L. Johnson, the well-known tobacco merchant, who shot a bullet into his brain at his country home in Ridgewood, N. Y., caused a sensation this morning in Maiden Lane.

Four years ago William M. Price, the senior member of the firm, died. Mr. Johnson continued the business until about eighteen months ago, when he closed out the establishment and was succeeded by Wedgman & Tappin.

It was supposed that Mr. Johnson retired from active business with a competitor, it being understood that his income was something like $15,000 a year.

Mr. Johnson was very liberal with his friends, and his half boys received from him a large amount of money. His beautiful wife he lived for the last three years in the elegant "Englishwood" at 1147 Lexington avenue, corner of Fifty-first street.
